

She Took Him Back Again

[Verse 1]

She showed up on my doorstep with a suitcase and a bruise
Said, "I swear this time I'm leaving, I've got nothing left to lose."
But the baby started crying and her voice began to shake
She said, "I need a place to breathe and figure what it takes."

[Chorus]

And she took him back again. Like a storm she can't outrun
She keeps hoping he'll be different, when the damage is already done
And I hold my breath each time. She says, "This time it's the end."
But the ink's not even dry before she takes him back again

[Verse 2]

She filed for her protection. Said, "This time I will be strong."
For a moment she believed it, as if courage could last long
But the nights grew cold and quiet and the baby would not sleep
So she answered when he called her with a promise he wouldn't keep

[Chorus]

And she took him back again. Like a storm she can't outrun
She keeps hoping he'll be different, when the damage is already done
And I hold my breath each time. She says, "This time it's the end."
But the ink's not even dry before she takes him back again

[Bridge]

I wish she saw her worth. The way I always have
She deserves a life of gentleness, not the scraps of what he gives
False love is so deceiving. Leaving heartache, doubt, and tears
And I fear she'll keep on stumbling down the path she's walked for years

[Chorus]

And she took him back again. Like a storm she can't outrun
She keeps hoping he'll be different, when the damage is already done
And I hold my breath each time. She says, "This time it's the end."
But the ink's not even dry before she takes him back again
