

She Has Your Eyes

[Verse 1]

We had a little house with flowers by the door
You'd laugh and say they never bloomed the way the pictures swore
I still hear your voice at bedtime, reading stories soft and slow
Now I turn the pages for her with a tremble you'd never know

[Chorus]

She has your eyes
The same soft glow that made our small world feel like spring
She has your smile
The one that turned the hardest days to gentle things
And though you're gone
Your love still shines
Right here in her
She has your eyes

[Verse 2]

We thought we had forever, but forever changed its mind
You slipped away one Sunday, like the morning leaving night
She carries all your quiet grace in ways she doesn't see
And every time she looks at me, you come back quietly

[Chorus]

She has your eyes
The same soft glow that made our small world feel like spring
She has your smile
The one that turned the hardest days to gentle things
And though you're gone
Your love still shines
Right here in her
She has your eyes

[Bridge]

I keep your sweater folded on the chair you loved the best
And she curls inside it sometimes, like she's leaning on your chest

[Chorus]

She has your eyes
The same soft glow that made our small world feel like spring
She has your smile
The one that turned the hardest days to gentle things
And though you're gone
Your love still shines
Right here in her
She has your eyes
